A NOTHER VOLUNTARY EVIDENCE OF THAT celebrated Astrologer's skill.—It gives us pleasure to see that our contemporaries appreciate the talents and skill of that noble astrologer. C W Robask. The following is an editorial from the Williamsburg Daity Gazette, of July 6, 1822. Read and refact:—Astrology—Mesors Editors—I have investigated, in my time, a good many "developments" purporting to be supernatural, but must confess that my researches in this way have only led to the detection of imposture. On the other hand, I have within the last year secome acquainted with a very extraordinary man, who, without making any pretension to knowledge, beyond the sphere of natural sciences, forcells events, and warns people against misfortune, with a degree of prescience that may well strike the most skeptical dumb with astronithment. I refer to Dr. C. W. Roback, an eminent Swedish philosopher, and the greatest of living astrologers. His fame, founded upon theusends of successful predictions, draws multitudes of every class to his residence, No. 6 White street. He points out, by calculations, based upon the movements of the stars, the fortwards and unfortunate days of Hej and I have reason to know that his forewarnings have been the means of sverting great evils, which must have occurred, had the individuals zone blindly forward in their career, without having their peaks illuminated by the torch of prophecy. I do not pretend to say that I believe in the second plantament of miracles by human agency, but I do aver that the fuffitment of the predictions made by Dr. C. W. Roback, she meats striking proof of the power of occult art that has ever come within the range of my observation or reading.

The Latest from Washington. MEXICO AND THE TEHUANTEPEC TREATY - THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL IN A FIX-THE CHARGES AGAINST SECRETARY CORWIN -THE OFFICE OF POSTMASTER GENERAL, ETC.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE NEW YORK HERALD.

WASHINGTON, August 26-10 % P. M. te emanate from the Committee on Foreign Relation of the Senate, upon the Tehuantepec matter, is to be madin executive session. It will fully sustain Mr. Webster in the ground he has taken upon the Garay Grant. It is very probable the ultimatum will be given to the Mexican Minister here, and that Judge Conklin will not proceed to Mexico till a response is given to the communication thus made.

Mexico till a response is given to the communication thus made.

The Harbor and River bill is in an awkward fix. It lies on the Speaker's table, and cannot be taken from there except by a two thirds vote. As there are more than enough opponents of the bill to prevent this action, the chances are that it may go on till the next session. Independently of this the Senate will adhere to their amendments, and the House will insist upon striking them out. The special committee to investigate the charges against Mr. Corvin, is prepared to report that there is not sufficient time at this session to enter into the investigation. The rumors so industriously circulated with regard to Mr. Burrows, are wholly destitute of any foundation. He has not been offered the Post Office Department, and would not accept any office. The appointment will not be offered to any one till Mr. Hall is confirmed, and then it is highly probable it will not be conferred upon a New Yorker.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL—SUCCESSFUL TRIAL OF A FIRE ANNIHILATOR

Washington, August 23 1852.

The Hon. James Brooks, it is positively affirmed to-day, will succeed Mr. Hall as Postmaster General Mr. Hall will be confirmed as District Judge of Northorn New York.

Processor Boynton made a most successful experiment with the fire annihilator, to night, on the public grounds west of the Capitol. At imporary frame building, two stories high, was erected, and filled with combustible materials, which were lighted, and after the fire had got under thorough headway, and the fismes were bursting through the windows a stream from the annihilator was applied, which quecked the fire in less than a minute. The immense concourse present manifested their decided approbation by loud plaudits.

THIRTY-SECOND CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, August 26, 1852. REPORTS FROM THE PRINTING COMMITTEE.

Mr. Hamin, from the Committee on Printing, reported adversely on the motion to print extra copies of the evidence in the Florida contested election case, and favorably on the motion to print five thousand extra copies of the report of the Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, which was concurred in. Also, a joint resolution authorizing the efficer of the House and Senate to aid it and settle the account of the printer during the recess—this was considered, and passed. Also, a resolution requesting the President to lay before the Senate, with his annual message a compendium of the several reports of the Heads of Departments. Adopted.

STATE OF SOCIETY, ETC.

New Obleas, August 21, 1852.

By the arrival of the steamship Empire City, we have dates from Havana to August 18th, being four days later. The excitement at Havana relative to the publication of revolutionary documents, still continued and many more arrests had been made by the government. The Governor General had announced that all persons convicted of being the authors of these publications should be put to death.

It was also reported that several of the supposed offenders had been shot, but the rumor is not credited. The Governor that the first number, gave currency to an acticle of a very threatening tone, in which it was asserted that the Governor was partially acquainted with the persons engaged in printing the revolutionary documents, even from the appearance of the first number, but that he waited for more certain information of the fact.

The great notabilities-the figurantes in European and American history—the char-acters, who, perhaps, will form the Cinderellas, and Giant-killers, and Aladdins of America's nursery tales in after ages—all hailed from the Empire City. There met tegeth. er like a happy family-or at least were expected to meet —the Queen of Bavaria, whom the good fairy preserved from all the wiles and sparce of the Jesuitioni Prime Minwonderful slippers; the great discoverer and exhibitor of worlly horses, Fejee mermaids, Joyce Heths, and singing angels, the Napeleon of showmen, Barnum; the Hom. out the universal papaces for the human race to conliquor-law-ism, and religious avoidance of Windsor coap and Martin's blacking; and, though last, not least, the and Martin's blacking; and, though last, not least, the Honorable and Reverend Mr. Pick himself, duly impressed with the importance of the occasion, his dutice as comptreller of the file and dispenser of hospitalities, and his trust as custodian of Lola's prime canine favorite, the long-longued Flora. We have not yet received any report of the fun and froile of the feetivities, nor of the speeches and crations delivered on that occasion, nor doweyet know, incled, whether all of the before mentioned personages were actually present; but we may presume that all accepted the invitations sent them, and wanied themeives of the opportunity of participating in the most humorous and relevench pic-nic of the season. In advance, therefore, of our regular despatches, we may announce that the Countess of Landsfeldt, and the greatest enthusiasm, the cheers of the men, and the waving of cambric by the ladies, presented to the reducible Pick Club a splendidly filluminated banner, wrought by the fingers of a coterio of the fair contributors, accompanying the presentation with a most eloquent, impring, and heart-stirring appeal to the gallantry and intreplity of those whose greatest prile is should hereafter be to march under its silken folds. With sparkling eye and dilated form, the fair Countess recounted the history of her early efforts as a poor and unknown dansense—her triumphs and her promotion into the councils of a great king—her absequent persecutions, and her final expulsion from the kingdem of Bavaria, where she had teigued only through the love of her subjects—and their soversign. Skipping lightly over the intervening events, and not once making mention of the repony London guardsman—her liege lord and husband—she depleted, with eloquent tongue, the enthusiastic reception she had met with from the noble American people in New York, Philadelphia, and Boston; and swore, "by the soul of her mother," that she would ever preserve the most graceful remembrance of all their kindnesses to a poor, friendless artists, like th

Though pleasures flee, it still will cheer
Our sinking hearts, if once a year
We still may meet, as we do here,
To dance, feast, and carol a
Merry song, in praise of wits,
Scoville's jokes and Baraum's "hits,"
Greeley's antics, and the "fits"
Little itaymond gets from Lola.

The chorus was well and lustily sustained and a wre f laurel was soon entwined and placed on the brow he classic Pick. Then Greeley most gallantly tue cola under the arm Earnum polted up the pools, the mp how it would at on his mouse rise and the ladies
